

ABSTRACT

A releasable cable grip for locking a cable within a housing is provided. Levers which extend through slots in the housing are fixed to spring biased wedges that force the cables within the cable grip against bores within the housing to lock the cables relative to the housing. By moving the levers outside the housing against the force of the springs biasing the wedges, the cables may be released relative to the housing.